D A V has stood by our nation’s ill and injured heroes—day in, day out—for close to a century. Like every great organization that has endured the test of time, DAV understands that in order to continue to meet the increasing needs of the growing number of wounded heroes we serve, it is crucial to adapt to our ever-changing world with ease. While our colors and logo may look a little different, rest assured that we are committed to empowering disabled veterans who have served in every branch of service, and all ages of war, as we were on the day that we were formed. As a DAV Guardian Society member, please know that you are among DAV’s most valued partners because of your exceptional support through your estate plans and/or our annuity program. Few Americans have done as much or try to help build a better future for our nation’s injured heroes.

We can never thank you enough.

Adrian's body took a beating while working for the DAV. Among the nearly 1,000 Marines in his battalion, 22 were killed in action, 200 were wounded, and countless others suffered unseen injuries that have since come to light.

Today, Adrian lives with the impact of the injury-imposed leaving, service derangement, PTSD, and a traumatic brain injury. As Adrian and his family labored for help and hope, they realized that the government served as a fortress, and that he needed help fast. The DAV did just that. It provided the care and support that he needed to stay in his home and make it through this challenging chapter in his life.

"So many families are going through what we're going through," said Adam's wife. "It's important that families have somewhere they can turn to, and the DAV has been a huge help." From the DAV, the service members, veterans, and their families receive support and guidance as they face their own unique battles.
